

A guide to G4C

What we stand for

Welcome to G4C. We are the young professional voice of the UK built environment industry, and an integral part of Constructing Excellence. A place where you can connect, challenge and help shape the future of our industry. We think it's important that young people get the opportunity to meet one another, influence decision-makers and develop their careers.

So we built a network which spans 10 regions across the country. We bring people together through our events and recognise their achievements through our awards. Our blogs, publications and influence at the heart of many of the industry's biggest change initiatives means we are getting our voices heard.

But we need you too. If we're to realise our industry's potential, we need bright, bold people to step forward and seize the opportunity. Because what we do supports the fabric of modern society – the schools we build, places we make or homes we create enable us to lead the lives we lead.

So whether you're an architect or archaeologist, surveyor or systems engineer, programmer or procurer, working for an SME, contractor, consultant or client, we want you to help shape our future.

Vision & Mission

Our vision is for the UK built environment industry to achieve excellence and become an industry of choice to talented young people.

As the only truly cross-industry, independent young professional network, our mission is to help change our industry for the better.

Get involved

Join, attend and contribute to our:

- Events;
- Blog posts;
- Research and thought leadership;
- Social events;
- Online discussions (using the app, Slack).

We're directed by two national co-chairs with each region being led by their own chair. We always strive to achieve a diverse group of chairs and committee members.

Being part of a regional committee allows you to:

- Access senior thought leaders within Constructing Excellence and across industry;
- Drive forward the areas of change you're passionate about and want to see;
- Build a broader network outside of your employer;
- Raise your personal profile and get recognition through publications, blogs and events;
- Enhance your understanding of key industry developments, trends and people; and,
- Have fun, be anarchic, creative and air your ideas!

In return we ask that you:

- Attend our regional committee meetings (usually monthly, in person or by phone);
- Do the things you commit to (we're here to help);
- Attend G4C events (wherever possible - we know workloads can make this tough);
- Bring enthusiasm, passion and ideas to move G4C forward.
